Dear participants of EDLL 2021!

Thank you for your registration! As you may know by now, the conference is to be held in gather.town on 10-12 March. If you are receiving this email, then you have access to the gather.town space using this email address.

You can access the conference hall here: <https://gather.town/app/XT5gyXE9d9ZcENC9/EDLL2021>

The conference space is now open and can be accessed any time up to the end of the conference.

We will be here in gather.town tomorrow Wednesday, 3 March, from 1pm to 3pm. So if you'd like to come and say Hello and check out the space while we're here, feel free to call in then! However, if that time doesn't suit you, you can come at any other time. This step is completely optional, but we thought you might like to come and explore the space and find your way around.

If you haven't used gather.town before, you can get used to how the system works. Outside those two hours on Wednesday (and the conference days), the number of participants in the space at any time is limited to 25.

We have put together some instructions for finding your way around the space, including information for the poster and talk sessions. Please check out the instructions here:

Best,
Elnaz and Jessie
